Hi Simon - the term tip was the one used by Ray Jones' father when he was the refuse collector for Glynneath in the 1930s and 40s when the tip was owned by the council, it was also the same one used by the refuse collector George Anton in the 1950s which his niece Jane remembers. - not forgetting the bog of course where they also want to build on. - Dai

Dai,

The term tip, was an affectionate title given to the area, dating back to when I was a young boy in the 80's - at that time I did not know if anyone was actually physically tipping there.

I understand the Planning Process.

I am speaking directly with the Planning Officers to obtain the full facts for this scheme.

Thanks

Simon apologies - something not quite right. in what you said, this.....

"Like you, I have always know this area to be the "tip" and no doubt much of the information you have provided to the officers is factual and correct, it is for them to follow the correct process in a timely manner to determine the application or not."

If you are aware that it is a tip and not gently sloping land as defined in the LDP then you are not undertaking a duty of care to the people of Glynneath which is your job as a councillor and in particular the mayor. As a quantity surveyor, and I don't care whether you are freelance or not you should be taking an interest in understanding the planning application process etc especially if it involves your town. If you check out my Enzo page you will see that the Glynneath Town Council are negligent in 2003, 2008 and 2010-2016 (I haven't covered that time yet) as far as their due diligence is concerned and if you sit back and let the planning department make incorrect planning decisions that you know are incorrect but because you are a county councillor and paid by NPTC you sit back and let shit happen to the good people of your town then rather than being corrupt and useless like Del Morgan your just spineless and useless Simon Knoyle. You need to grow some bigger balls and get off the fence. People will respect you for it. - Dai

PS - your back on my mailing list until you decide which side of the fence you are on, because if you are not on my side I'm going to throw stones until you fall one way or the other.
